Who are Soundcast?

Soundcast is an engineering company that developed many Bluetooth products for many of the largest brands. They are based in San Diego, California.

They are tough

The baby VG1 has an IP rating of IP67! So dust, weather, submerge it under water, it'll keep playing. Even if you strap it to your belt while performing death-defying activities, you'll notice that it's a metal handle, so it won't break. The VG3, VG5 & VG7 have a down-firing subwoofer, so they can't be submerged in water, but pretty much anything else is fine!

What are they about?

For me, they are about parties, entertainment & fun. The product deals exceptionally well with the elements, rain, UV sunlight, and to top it off, has a lot of battery juice. The bigger siblings can be left in the centre of the entertainment space & blast music (or drunken speeches) in all directions.

What about Wi-Fi multiroom music systems?

Yamaha's Musiccast & Denon's Heos both feature Bluetooth out, so it's perfect. Neither brand has a high energy, weatherproof, portable solution, so an ideal fit. Sonos doesn't have Bluetooth, so use a Sonos connect with a Soundcast Bluetooth transmitter (VGTX).

They are expensive

The elephant in the room is price, but I wouldn't buy anything unless I see value. In the case of Soundcast & particularly VG7, you need to look more closely. It actually has 3 separate amplifiers. One amplifier is dedicated to the 7" subwoofer. The other amplifiers power 4 other speakers. Each speaker is enclosed in its own speaker box. If something should happen to it, repairs & maintenance is simple. So having 4 independent speakers, subwoofer & amplifiers it can single-handedly fill a beer garden. Not bad for $1400. It should last way past the 2-year warranty & it's portable, so you'll use it more!

What about big game?

Soundcast has a Bluetooth transmitter called a VGTX, but this transmitter is special! First, you can connect it to the TV via the supplied Toslink cable. Second, it'll beam a signal up to 50m! Normally, Bluetooth range is 20m max. Third, it features LLC which means Bluetooth lip sync. You can have the game on the big TV inside & put a Soundcast on the deck outside, creating an incredible game atmosphere, and enjoy the action without a lag.

Experience Soundcast at 562

We set up a VG7 & VG1. We want you to appreciate the most important thing the amazing sound. Bluetooth with the help of newer standards (V4-2), better digital amps, speakers & DACs, has come a long way. In fact, these can be paired together for true stereo, taking sound to a new level! So come in and ask us about Soundcast!

SALE

Since the Sony Walkman, people were happy with headphones and earphones with cables, but things have now changed. Being tangled in cables is now uncool. This particularly applies to people using their watches for music or doing exercise. So its no surprise that Panasonic has dumped wired headphones before the end of Japanese financial year (31 March), but what's surprising is that this time they included wireless Bluetooth cans. For this reason, we have jumped at the chance to buy some stock for you guys!

In 2018 we will be narrowing our "D&M focus" on just Denon. We either sell the remaining Marantz products or they will go back to Marantz. Obviously, we can't make our customers happy by sending back the stock, so make us an offer & chances are that we'll say yes.

AUDIO SOLUTIONS FOR SHOPS, CAFES & BUSINESSES

Audio systems start with a source. The Audac solution involves installing the XMP44 in an equipment rack like the Sanus CFR1615 or installing it under the counter using the Caymon ID110. The XMP44 accepts up to 4 audio modules. Two popular modules are the Digital/FM radio module & the Bluetooth module. These modules are simply pushed into the vacant by at the back of the XMP44. The output of the XMP44 will commonly be fed into the powerful CAP448. This beast will power up to 4 different zones of commercial premises. From there, you just need speakers.
